

For C.V. Ranch

Sewage treatment required by county

By KEN PETERSON

CARMEL VALLEY Ranch must provide an advanced level of sewage treatment to win health department approval for its on-site treatment plant and golf course irrigation plan.

Monterey County Environmental Health Director Walter Wong said he already has rejected one of two treatment alternatives proposed by the firm Cregen and D'Angelo of San Jose, consultant to the ranch developers.

Wong said he wants the second approach modified to include additional treatment steps as a public health safeguard.

The extra steps would remove more viruses from the effluent and subject the water to extra filtration before it is used to irrigate the 18-hole golf course on the ranch.

The consultant's report on sewage treatment and water supply for the 1,700-acre development is still in the hands of the state Department of Health, Wong said Monday. Its recommendations will be forwarded back to his office before the ranch subdivision can proceed.

LANDMARK LAND Co. of Oklahoma is asking permission to build 160 residential units in the first phase of construction. Ultimate development of the property calls for 500 homes and a 100-unit resort lodge, in addition to the golf course, golf clubhouse and a tennis club.

The property is located on the south side of the Carmel River at the intersection of Carmel Valley and Robinson Canyon roads.

The consultants said they believe the Carmel Valley aquifer "can provide an adequate supply" of residential and irrigation water for the first phase project, either by a connection into the California-American Water Co. system or through a mutual water company serving only the ranch.

Two existing wells on the property could serve a mutual company, they said, and would "meet the requirement of a proven water source" imposed by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

But full development of the property could require a new well in the Tularcitos Aquifer, they add.

Leslie Kelsay, information officer for Cal-Am, said Tuesday the company can serve all the ranch except for the 100 units proposed for the southernmost ridge on the property.

In order to extend service there, she said, the developers would have to provide water from the Tularcitos Aquifer or some other new source.

The remainder of the ranch development is within Cal-Am's service boundaries, she said.

Negotiations continue between Carmel Valley Ranch and Cal-Am for a connection agreement, Mrs. Kelsay said.

THE PROPOSED sewage treatment, storage and irrigation system would be handled by a county service area established to run and maintain the system, according to the consultants.

They even suggest that one person double as superintendent of both the golf course and the treatment plant because of the complex coordination needed to make the system work.

Wong rejected one treatment plant design which would have used a large septic tank and two aerating devices called rotating biological contactors to treat the sewage before it is filtered, chlorinated and pumped to three golf course lakes for final aeration.

Wong said he didn't like the idea of aerating sewage in the lakes because of potential odor problems. The con-

Carmel science students inspect a 'solar chariot'

ED WALKINSTIK and his dog "Hope" drove down from Sacramento on Friday to put their solar-powered motorhome, the "Solar Chariot," on display at Carmel Middle School.

"People have fed us so much bull on solar energy," Ed remarked out of earshot of the youngsters. "I'm trying to straighten it out."

energy curriculum," Schut said.

Ed and his dog have logged more than 350,000 miles in the "Solar Chariot," visiting schools and making lectures about solar energy. On Friday, the middle school science students climbed aboard the motorhome and talked with Ed about his gizmos and his travels.

"THERE'S NOTHING solar in our house," said Sabrian Grant, 12, a student who lives in Carmel. "I think solar power is neat, but I guess my parents don't."

Bill Norton, 11, of Carmel Valley, told Ed his father bought a solar-powered music box and gave it to him. "It plays Dominique," Bill remarked, "but I'm getting tired of the same song."

Tammy Richardson, 13, also from Carmel Valley, said her father had just installed a solar-powered Jacuzzi. And Lindsey Friday, also 13 and from the Valley, told Ed his father installs solar heaters for a living.

"I know how to install the collectors," Lindsey said with confidence. "And I'll probably go into the business."

Ed gave him encouragement. As he said earlier, "There's nothing new under the sun. Just improved ways to use it."

Hearings scheduled for Marriott, Cal-Am wells

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors will have a busy afternoon Tuesday. Hearings are scheduled on the Rancho Canada Marriott Lodge and a California-American Water Co. proposal to drill four new wells. Both projects affect the mouth of Carmel Valley.

The water company will appeal a planning commission decision at 2 p.m. The commission ordered the firm to prepare an environmental impact report on the wells before it can get use permits. At peak production, the wells would yield 5,000 acre-feet per year. They are not expected to be at maximum production until the turn of the century.

The Marriott hearing is scheduled at 2:30 p.m. The company also is appealing a planning commission decision. In this case, the commission ruled that the proposed 376-room hotel is inconsistent with four master plan documents covering the Lower Carmel Valley.

The Cal-Am wells are proposed at four locations west of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club. Their approval later would require construction of a second iron removal plant in the Valley. There are high concentrations of metal in the Lower Valley water table. If an EIR is ruled out by the supervisors, the utility would return to the planning commission for use permits for the wells.

The resort hotel is proposed for the westerly 25 acres of Rancho Canada Golf Club.

A finding by the supervisors that the hotel is consistent would send the project back to the planning commission. The plan then would be evaluated on its technical merits and approved or denied on that basis.

Both hearings will take place in the supervisors' chambers, Church and Alisal streets, in Salinas.

Great Pumpkin Party at Youth Center

Are your costumes all ready for the annual Great Pumpkin Party at the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center? Rudi Lamar is chairman of the Halloween parade which will begin at 5:30 p.m. on Oct. 31 at Hobby Haven. Costumes will be judged there and along the route to the Community Center where prizes will be awarded.

There also will be a pumpkin carving contest, according to chairman Ken Nixon, who requests that all entries be in place by 6:30 p.m.

Marian Englund, general chairman of the Goblin Carnival, urges families to have dinner at the center and then visit the spook house, fortune telling booth, cake walk and bingo tables. There also will be numerous games of chance and "scary" movies.

Students from Tularcitos school are providing the festive decorations for this traditional community event.

Valleyites on executive staff

Kiwanis Club installs officers

The Holiday Inn in Carmel was selected for the Carmel Mission Kiwanis Club installation dinner party last week. Kiwanis Lt. Gov. Fred Fozounmayeh served as installing officer.

Named new president of the organization was Clyde Roy Klaumann. Members of his executive staff include Valleyites; Michael P. Milligan, president, and Ralph E. Retherford, vice president. Elected from Carmel were Milton W. Moore, treasurer and Charles L. Pugh, secretary.

Directors elected from Carmel Valley were James D. Long, Lew E. McCreery, Carlton A. Culbert and Carl C. Schmuck.

Others were Richard Wecker, Clyde Tuomela and Peter Chmarney.

Space available at Tularcitos Flea Market

Flea Market space is still available at the Tularcitos Parent Club-sponsored rummage sale and flea market, according to chairman Jim Luttrell. There is a $20 rental fee.

The fund raiser is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 28 from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. For reservations or further information, call Jim at 659-4600

College night at Carmel High

Carmel High School will host a college night beginning at 7:30 tonight in the gymnasium.

Representatives from all classes of college will be available to make presentations and answer questions. A college financial aid officer will discuss scholarships and student loans.

College spokesmen will include individuals from a community college, the state college system, the University of California, and a private college representative familiar with both East and West Coast institutions.

Superintendent is guest of parents

Carl E. Wilsey, superintendent of Carmel Unified School District, will address members of the Padre Parents Club next Thursday at Carmel High School.

His talk is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. in room 2 on campus.

AN EVENING in old Vienna will be re-created at the Viennese Affair, to be presented Saturday, Oct. 21, at Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley. The elegant opera ball will include a buffet dinner and dancing to Strauss waltzes. Above, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Spaulding practice their steps while Roger Emanuel provides the music. Youth Center film stars Marlon Brando Marlon Brando will be featured in "The Wild One" Friday night at the Carmel Valley Youth Center. Approximately 7:15 Movie.

In addition to the feature film about a rebellious motorcycle rider, the Youth Center will also screen "Catch the Joy," a movie about dune buggy racing, and a cartoon.

The films start at 7:15 p.m. at the center at Ford and Carmel Valley roads. Admission is $1.50 over 18 and $1 for 18 and under. The snack bar will be open.

More information is available by calling John Harrison at 659-9954.

Hidden Valley plans new opera season

Plans for the new Hidden Valley opera season were announced last week to more than 88 members of the Friends of Hidden Valley who were gathered on the Hidden Valley campus in Carmel Valley for their annual membership luncheon.

The operatic ensemble will begin rehearsals in early November for a program that will include Don Pasquale, Gianni Schicci, Turn of the Screw and Carmen. Performances of selected operatic highlights, on the format of last year's Figaro and Friends, will be presented in December and again in the spring.

The annual reunion concert of summer orchestral students is scheduled for Dec. 29.

New officers for the Friends of Hidden Valley were introduced. They are Mrs. Richard La Garde, president; Mrs. Willoughby Moore, vice president; Mrs. Edward N. Wright, recording secretary; Harold Fly, treasurer; and Mrs. Charles Smart, parliamentarian.

Scenes from Don Pasquale were sung by Velvali Teixeira, Reg Huston and Larry Venza, accompanied by Marvella Peterman.

WINE AND ART: The Punch and Judy Chapter of the Children's Home Society will award paintings by Jeffrey Barter and Dr. Philip Thorngate as door prizes at the annual wine-tasting benefit at the Beach

Mrs. R. G. LaGarde re-elected president

'Friends' introduce new officers

Mrs. R. G. La Garde was re-elected president of the Friends of Hidden Valley and introduced with her slate of officers at the annual membership luncheon last week.

Mrs. Willoughby Moore will serve as vice president of the organization; Harold Fly, treasurer; Mrs. Edward N. Wright, recording secretary; and Mrs. Charles Smart, parliamentarian.

Assisting Mrs. La Garde with plans for the chicken salad luncheon was Mrs. Roy Martelli of Salinas. Eighty guests were seated in the lounge of Hidden Valley Music Seminars. Gold cloths with green napkins made an effective fall background for the wicker plates filled with green and red grapes and grape leaves. The attractive center pieces also served as dessert.

Entertainment was provided during the afternoon by singers from the ensemble. Velvali Teixeira, Reg Huston and Larry Venza were accompanied by Marvella Peterman, who also is box office manager for Hidden Valley.

Peter Meckel, director of Hidden Valley, described the coming programs and announced the news of a $250,000 grant from CETA.

Robert Fenton named to board

The Monterey-San Benito unit of the American Cancer Society hosted its annual installation dinner meeting last week at the Corral de Tierra Country Club.

Among the newly elected members of the board of directors was Valleyite Robert Fenton. Others included Bill Hoot of Carmel.

Duncan McCarter of Salinas succeeded Vernon Horton as president of the organization.

Cachagua rezoning delayed

Rezoning of the Cachagua Valley has been delayed indefinitely after the Monterey County Board of Supervisors shot down a new zoning category for the area last week.

On a 3-2 vote, the supervisors rejected a compromise version of proposed "SC-1" zone. The new zone was recommended by the planning department staff and the county planning commission.

The compromise proposed by Supervisors Sam Farr and Michal Moore would have controlled construction on ridgelines, requiring a use permit to build in visually sensitive areas.

Zoning administrator report on C.V. Ranch

Sewage treatment required

sultants recommended the alternative because it is simpler and requires less energy than the extended aeration design preferred by Wong.

In this design, the sewage goes directly into one of two enclosed 50,000-gallon aeration tanks, where most of the solids settle.

Effluent then goes to a clarifier for more settling before it is filtered, chlorinated and pumped into the lakes.

Wong wants an additional coagulating step to remove viruses and more filtration before the chlorine is added.

"The process requires relatively careful operational control, and energy requirements are relatively high," according to the Creegan and D'Angelo report. "The process produces an excellent secondary effluent when operated correctly."

Wong said with the additional steps he proposed, the effluent will be almost at tertiary or third-stage treatment by the time it is used on the golf course.

His modifications will add to the cost of the plant, he said.

The treatment plant, in either case, would have an ultimate capacity of 100,000 gallons per day. The consultants estimate this is the maximum needed to serve the development.

THE THREE GOLF course lakes where the effluent will be diluted with well water and stored have a storage capacity of 9.9 million gallons. This is 10 per cent more than the maximum storage the consultants say is needed during an extended rainy season.

Adding freeboards, a temporary raised well, around the perimeters of the lakes would increase their storage volume to 12 million gallons, according to the consultants.

They anticipate no runoff of effluent from the golf course into the Carmel River because of the rapid rate at which water is absorbed into the ground on the ranch. During rainy periods, irrigation would stop. Runoff from residential areas will be channeled into separate drainage streams and then into the river.

To prevent any possibility of effluent runoff, Creegan and D'Angelo propose careful monitoring of winds and the percolation rate of water into the golf course soil. When the wind is blowing at 4 mph or more, or if water is not being absorbed in the soil, they recommend irrigation be halted. Most irrigation is planned for the evening and early morning hours when no one is on the course.

The lakes must be lined with impermeable materials to prevent seepage of the effluent into the water table. The consultants suggest either polyvinyl chloride, Bentonite, soil cement or clay.

They also propose that signs be posted around the lakes and notices printed on golf scorecards warning that the lake water is for irrigation only and is not potable.

Their report emphasizes that the irrigation water system will be separate from the drinking water system on the golf course.

Cachagua subdivisions

Four Cachagua Valley subdivisions moved ahead through the Monterey County Planning Commission last week while a fifth was denied as inconsistent with the newly operated Cachagua Master Plan.

Division of a 10-acre parcel on Cachagua Road by Marco Treganza was rejected because the August 1977 master plan and July 13 partial rezoning sets a 10-acre minimum for all property except for existing lots of record.

Treganza wants to create two five-acre lots. He has appealed the denial to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors and will get a hearing on Nov. 7 at 2:30 p.m. in Salinas.

The commission approved the David Ostrander minor subdivision on Tassajara Road, allowing four building sites in a 10-acre minimum zone.

It also approved a mitigated negative declaration of environmental impact for the Asoleado Subdivision. It would create nine 10-acre parcels on a 90.7-acre lot. The area is zoned for a five-acre minimum.

The commission approved negative declarations for the Ken Haff subdivision at Cachagua and Nason roads, to divide a 170-acre parcel into two 40-acre lots and two 45-acre lots; and the Fred Gonzalez proposal to rezone his land on Cachagua Road from a 45-acre minimum to 15-acre minimum.

Small turnout at Valley blood drawing

Lack of interest and donors was the disappointing report from Carmel Valley Blood Bank chairman Mrs. Thomas McKiernon, whose staff processed an all-time low of 72 donors at last week's blood drawing at the Carmel Valley Community Chapel.

Mrs. McKiernon paid tribute to John Schaffer and Mark Bindel who now qualify for the "one gallon pin"; to Theo Mirani, a two-gallon donor; and Alex Olmsted, who reached the three-gallon goal.

On behalf of the American Red Cross, she thanked the other donors who were Mitchell Klub, Thomas Little, Horace Randazzo, Josephine Diaz, Sal Verde, Ruth Bishop, Laura Wolf, Kathy Little, Kalani Fonseca, Michael Milligan, Betty Carter, Ermalyn Gistelli, Susan Clayton, Gordon Crosby, Roberto Rede, Matha Meadows, Harold Meadows, Cathryn Smith, Lynda Baker, Marcia Lockwood, Mary Jernegan, Roger Gardner, Sarah Slautterback and Willard Gill.

Among the many volunteers it takes to put together a blood bank were members of the telephone committee: Mmes. Gordon Wells, Bertram Heckenlaible, Walter Kietagawa, Martha Lang, David Allard, Vera Stokes, Otto Huebner, Jack Granoff, Thomas Farrell, Gary Tate and Don Middleton.

Posters and directional signs were the hours contributed by Girl Scout Troop 2012 and its leader, Mrs. Richard King.

Volunteers needed for Upper Valley Advisory Committee

PLANNING Commissioner William Peters is looking for volunteers to serve on the Upper Carmel Valley Advisory Committee after the panel resigned in frustration last week.

Augustine Acuna, chairman of the committee, told the Outlook he felt hampered by a lack of information and time to review development projects in the area.

The committee is one of 18 similar groups countywide. It is designed to provide comment from people most familiar with an area on development proposals in their community.

But Acuna said the members felt "we were wasting our time" making recommendations based on limited data and then having the Monterey County Board of Supervisors or planning commission ignore them.

THE COMMITTEE first sent a letter of resignation in August, but agreed to stay on the job an additional 60 days to see if the situation would change.

Volunteers needed for advisory committee

"Nothing at all changed," Acuna said.

But Peters believes new planning department procedures will make it easier for advisory committees in the future.

He credits Proposition 13 and the Upper Valley committee for the change.

Monterey County has tightened its development application procedures to require more information from applicants when they first make a proposal. In addition, the county has consolidated its application forms into a single document.

"We used to be very lenient," said Planning Director Ed DeMars. "We'd take an application on the back of an envelope."

But with limited staff under a tight Prop. 13 budget, the department now requires the developers to provide more complete information and forms.

This, in turn, will mean fewer gaps in the information going to advisory committees so that they can make informed recommendations, DeMars said.

According to Acuna, in the past if the committee asked for a delay to get more information, it would often find the planning commission had acted on the matter before getting a recommendation from the advisory group.

"While we thought the county is doing one hell of a job and the advisory committee is very useful, we felt we were not having any input," Acuna said.

ACCORDING TO DeMars, the complaint about being overruled by higher bodies is not unique to the advisory committee.

"Just look at the planning commission and the staff," he said.

In addition to Acuna, committee members John Woolfenden, Betsy Shea, Bob Kvenild, Will Fay and Almira Davis resigned from the panel.

Peters said he hopes some of them will join the reconstituted committee. He plans a meeting in the near future for interested individuals as he looks for new members.

Proposal to use fields by Sanitary District

Odello effluent treatment plan rejected by State

A PLAN to use the Odello agricultural land east of Highway 1 to treat Carmel Sanitary District effluent has been rejected by state water quality officials.

The proposal, one of six under study by the district in connection with its areawide facilities plan, does not meet "stringent" requirements limiting bacteria, according to Ken Jones, executive officer of the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Jones relayed the rejection in a letter to Kennedy Engineers, the district consultants on the facilities plan.

The sanitary district board of directors already has voted to spend most of its time and money investigating a $10.2 million proposal to irrigate Del Monte Forest golf courses with treated wastewater and ship the excess to Monterey for disposal in the bay there.

Reclamation would operate from May to October. The district is barred from using its effluent outfall line in Carmel Bay during that period because the bay is a state-designated "area of special biological significance."

The state Water Resources Control Board voted in June to permit ocean discharge during the wet-weather months only. The board eventually wants the sanitary district out of the bay entirely.

The Odello East proposal would involve treating the sewage and then using the effluent water on the 134 acres of farmland. It would theoretically be treated as it filtered through the ground or was used by plants growing on the land.

The water eventually would be pumped across the highway for use in waterfowl ponds on state park land to the west of Highway 1.

But Jones said the bacteria level of the water is too high to be permitted over the Carmel Valley aquifer. The aquifer provides water for most of the Monterey Peninsula through the California-American Water Co.

Because of this, the alternative is unacceptable, Jones said in his letter.

In addition to the sanitary district proposal, the Odello land is proposed for development by the Odello family. The Monterey County Board of Supervisors authorized a specific plan for the land last Tuesday.

The Odellos wish to build a 200-room hotel, 97 condominiums and a complex of shops on the land, leaving 68 acres in agricultural production.

OTHER PROPOSALS under study involve irrigating Carmel Valley golf courses with wastewater, putting the water directly into the Carmel River west of Schulte Road; piping the water to Potrero Canyon south of Carmel Valley for percolation into the ground; and construction of a separate treatment facility for reclamation in Pebble Beach.

District Engineer Kevin Walsh said he may still recommend the Odello East land be used in some reclamation plan.

But he pointed out that rejection of the alternative should not be a problem since the district's major emphasis is on the golf course reclamation plan.

Operation Fishnet hearing

The director of Operation Fishnet faces a land use hearing before the Monterey County Planning Commission next month to determine if she can expand her nursing home in Carmel Valley.

Pearl Williams, founder of the charitable organization, already operates a six-bedroom residential care facility in her home on Via Petra at Carmel Valley Road. It is south of Del Mesa Carmel, where Carmel Valley Road narrows to two lanes.

Because the property is zoned for single-family homes, Mrs. Williams needs a zoning change to permit the expansion from six to 12 bedrooms.

The commission asked for a land use hearing to determine if a nursing home is consistent with the Carmel Valley Master Plan for the area.

They will review the matter on Nov. 8 when they meet in the board of supervisors' chambers, Church and Alisal streets in Salinas.

Girl's team at Carmel High

Prep swimmers have a tradition--they don't lose

By KEN PETERSON

THE GIRLS' swimming team at Carmel High School has a tradition. It seldom loses.

It's not the easiest tradition to maintain—in theory. As a matter of fact, the Carmel girls have given the seniors a triumphant send-off the last five years in a row.

During the last five years, the team has run up 58 wins in a row. Even more remarkable, except for a 1972 loss to Salinas, it is 77-1 since 1971.

Coach Bob Walthour, himself a high school and college swimmer, professes some surprise at the team's success.

"I keep thinking we will never get better than before," he said.

Then the swimmers go out and set a dozen new school records, as they have in five meets so far this year.

"We have a lot of web-feet kids in this area," Walthour said. "We're building a tradition like Santa Clara."

The Santa Clara area has produced a string of world champion swimmers over the years, individuals like Don Schollander and Mark Spitz and the like.

Walthour has yet to see one of his swimmers reach world-class competition, although he said many will go on to compete in college on scholarships.

THE CARMEL team gets some stiff competition, particularly when it reaches the Central Coast Section championships. The section includes the Santa Clara area and many large high schools there.

"We're usually the smallest school in the section," Walthour said. Yet the Carmel frosh-soph girls placed second as a team last fall and the varsity finished 11th out of 120 schools.

"We're going to try and win the frosh-soph (division) this year and next year go after the varsity (championship)," he added.

For all the winning tradition, Walthour said he is not "a do or die" coach.

"I try to keep our team fun," he said. "I'm 51. I've been a coach for 24 years. I said when I took over the team that I'd quit when it's no longer fun."

The practices between meets are rigorous, but Walthour keeps up an easygoing banter with his swimmers throughout. He aims for 3,000 yards per swimmer in a one-hour session.

"Come on, come on," he exhorts the girls. "One 400 (medley) will make you pretty, two will make you beautiful!"

"I'll stop at pretty," one girl shouts back before plunging off for another 16 exhausting laps in the Carmel pool.

JUNIOR GAIL RADDE, shown competing in the backstroke, has been a consistent winner for the Padres in a variety of swimming events.

MANY OF THE swimmers work outside practices, Walthour said. Five swim the year 'round, 11 are competitive swimmers with the Carmel Barracudas each summer. Others swim with the Monterey Bay Marlins or the Salinas AAU teams.

The practice pays off. Sophomore Kerry Neill owns five school records in the frosh-soph division, three varsity records and set a Central Coast Section varsity record in the 50-yard freestyle last year.

Sisters Cindy and Gail Frost share between them six varsity and frosh-soph records set this year. Gail is a senior, Cindy a sophomore.

The team also features sisters Stacey and Sarah Hicks. Sarah, a freshman, already has qualified for the section championships in freestyle events. Stacey, a junior, is trying to win berths in the freestyle and backstroke.

Walthour also expects big things from freshman Kira Garrett. He already has seen the performances of sophomore Susie Hermanson and juniors Mary McCreery, Denise LaFontaine and Gwen Radde, who led the frosh-soph team to a second-place section finish last year.

The squad also has a strong diving unit, led by Theresa DeAmaral, Gretchen Seegchrist and Amanda Mallory. The frosh-soph divers won their division in 1977.

AS PROUD AS he is of their swimming accomplishments, Walthour also boasts of their academic achievements.

"They're highly academic," he said. "Last year the team averaged 3.5 (where 4.0 is straight As) for 50 girls. Now, with 40 girls, their average is 3.5 or 3.6. I push academics. I think there's a correlation between high achievers and a winning attitude."

Carmel's big dual meet of the year will come Tuesday in Salinas when they face the Salinas High School girls in a grudge match. Salinas snapped Carmel's win streak at 19 in 1972; Carmel returned the favor last year, ending a 40-meet Salinas win streak.

MARY MCCREERY is the main backstroke swimmer for the Carmel High School girls' team. In her junior year, she holds many school records in the backstroke and also competes on the varsity medley relay team.

Zoning administrator reports

County cannot restrict Cachagua ridgeline development

According to Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon, the county has no way to restrict ridgeline development or tree removal. Both controls are recommended in the 1977 Cachagua Master Plan approved by the supervisors.

Under state law, zoning must conform to the master plan for an area. The supervisors would have had a chance to vote on any specific application of the defeated zoning category.

The planning department also has been asked to draft regulations controlling ridgeline development in the Aguajito area between Carmel and Monterey.

Slimmon said the SC-1 zone also could have been used in that area.

Moore, who represents the Cachagua area, voted with a 4-1 board majority to delete the tree removal section, hoping to save the rest of the ordinance. Only Farr held out for that restriction. The two were defeated on the compromise proposal, with Supervisors Dusan Petrovic, Edwin Norris and Kenneth Blohm opposing.

17th annual Sand Castle contest

The beach became a sandy subdivision

A SCENE depicting a beer-guzzling television viewer won the "grand sand" award at Sunday's Great Sand Castle Contest on Carmel Beach. There were 251 entries. More than 6,000 people came to the beach, according to police estimates. There were no incidents reported.

The grand prize winner was entitled Leisure Time U.S.A., or Modern-day King Tut. Its creators included Craig and Barbara Vienna and Judy McDavid, all of Carmel.

Donald R. Brown, the Carmel architect who has judged all 17 contests, said he will step down next year. "It's time for someone else to have the fun," quipped Brown, the 1978 grand marshal. He said a committee of five members from the Monterey Bay chapter of the American Institute of Architects will share grand marshal duties in the future. The architects co-sponsor the October beach event with the city of Carmel.

Carmel Police Chief William Ellis said there were two or three complaints from residents about "sloppy parking," but there were no serious incidents reported.

"There were fewer people on the beach than in past years. There was the same or more traffic on the streets as in the past few years, however. I think a lot of people drove by, looked around and left," said Ellis.

"There was the World Series and a couple of good football games on television and I think that kept a few daddies away this year," the police chief said.

The winners, by category, were:

Grand Sand Award—"Leisure Time U.S.A. or Modern-Day King Tut" by Craig and Barbara Vienna; Geoffrey and Debra Knowles; Dennis and Gudrun O'Connor; Rod and Leslie Nixon; Dave Feix; Bill and Frances Vienna; Bob Townsend; Rick and Laurel Miller; Duayne and Maggie Raymer; John Hathaway; Clint and Therese Macy; Judy McDavid; Donna Anderson and children.

Theme Award—"Don't Worry! We'll get This Untangled Yet!" by Vance, Ruth, Clark Frasier; Chad, Jean, Nancy Taylor; Bruce Marwick and David Gabbard.

Sour Grapes Award—"Winged Isis" by the Schlaich family, the McHale family, the Mackay family and Kathleen Joy, Linda Brown, Richard Mendez, Ann McDonald and Leann and Mike Hamilton.

Advanced Sand Box Awards—"Treasure from the Past" by Matthew, Miller, Ortenburger; "Defeat of Ramses" by Kathryn, Coe, Sharon Burns, Samantha Miles, Squeazy Wiseman, Rachael Wiseman, Michael Parsons and John Burns; "Ramses Tomb" by Monterey Peninsula Jaycees; "King Tut Summer Castle in Carmel" by Ron Bender Rick Lesh, Bill Stone, Tom, Jeff and Paul Lanbell, Derrick Carrisosa; "Temple of Memphis in Nashville" featuring "The Nashville Cat" by Loyetta Mistretta. GRAND SAND Award-winner "Leisure Time U.S.A." attracted scores of bemused onlookers. A pot-bellied beer drinker lounged on the couch, his dog asleep at his feet, Bringing up young horses is a lot like raising children. The skills you learn by doing the one are equally valuable at doing the other.

If you like children and horses a lot, it's hard to decide which one to do first. Which species will be the practice job? Which will be the real thing? How come you only go around once in life and have to do everything right the first time?

Like most parents, we started with children and progressed to horses. At the outset this seemed cheaper.

In retrospect, maybe it's not cheaper but definitely easier. Kids you can make mistakes on and they still turn out okay. Horses are more fragile.

Children stop being entirely your own the day they are born. Schools, church, neighbors, television actors, Andy Gibb and the Bee Gees all have their effect. Sometimes a parent's most important job is simply to orchestrate these outside effects so all are in harmony.

Horses, on the other hand, only know what you teach them. And in your spare time at that. When your young horse grows up with weird ideas it is definitely your fault.

We know a Welsh Pony who has to be threatened with bodily harm to keep him out of the manger everytime he is ridden around his pasture. His rider had no such problems learning to ask permission before eating everything in the refrigerator.

Horses learn to hide in the bushes when they see you coming with a bridle in your hand. No one's going to put them to work!

Whereas, if you ride herd on your children, it is just possible to keep them from bugging out until chores are done.

It was easier to train our daughter to put the garbage in the garbage can than it was to train the pony to leave the garbage in the garbage can.

It's more fun to play with children than to play with a horse. When a horse gets playful he is likely to walk over you and mash you into the ground. Children have a much better score on this point. They are smaller than you. When you're losing you can just pull rank and send them to their room. If you play with a horse and lose, he'll send you to your room.

Children and horses are exactly alike in another respect. If you fight with them and win, then everybody loses. Losers' children grow up to be neurotic. Psychologists have found that every parent who beats his children was himself (or herself) beaten as a child and is just passing it on a generation later. No exceptions. Hang-ups endure unto the seventh generation.

Horses grow up to be neurotic also. They turn into head tossers, runaways, buckers, balkers and kickers. A neurotic horse can turn into a cold-jawed, unresponsive brute you would hardly recognize as human.

Or, more commonly, he turns into a jittery, jiggling, shying creature whose muscles bulge in the wrong places—like on the underside of the neck. Owners of these horses are likely to excuse them as being "too spirited" to be useful. Yes, ma'am; neurotic horses do tend to have neurotic owners.

There was a time when our daughter was still tiny when she came home from school each day in tears. Angry tears. Frustrated tears. It turned out that her teacher believed in competitions. The class was divided into halves and whichever half did its lessons best or kept seats the tidiest or was first at putting away things at dismissal time—that half won. The other half of the class lost.

But when we questioned the teacher, she admitted she chose the "winners" arbitrarily. The children had no way of predicting whether their efforts would be rewarded. She saw no harm in this. "It teaches the kids that sometimes they are winners and sometimes they are losers—in school just like in real life," she said.

Every small child wants, needs, and deserves to think of himself as a winner. The same goes for young horses.

The people and events experienced by a young horse write its "life script." Will it be a hero or a bit player? Will it be fond of humans or their enemy? Will it give honest effort? Deliver its lines without mumbling? Remember its cues and last until the final curtain?

Raising young horses requires a surer touch than raising your children. The principles: being reasonable and consistent are the same for both species. Raising children at home in your spare time is more expensive than raising horses. But in the horse world, at least, you can sell your failures.

Padres lose to R.L.S.

By JAY POSNER

THE CARMEL HIGH Padres travel to Gonzales on Friday to take on the Spartans at 8 p.m. in a must-win game for both teams. Last Saturday, the Padres lost to Robert Louis Stevenson School, 34-26, on a foggy day in Pebble Beach.

The Gonzales game is crucial because the loser will have two league losses and will fall two games behind the winner of tomorrow's RLS-Pacific Grove game. Both the Breakers and the Pirates are 2-0 in MTAL play. The Padres and Spartans are 1-1.

Against RLS, the Padre defense looked like it was going to make the Pirates its fourth straight shutout victim. After the Padres wasted a Steve Selle interception on their first possession, and RLS took over, Cory Bliesner intercepted an Ezra Burdix pass to the Pirate 30-yard line. Two plays later, Padre quarterback John Lucido hit Mark Nottenkamper with a 29-yard touchdown pass to put Carmel ahead 6-0 halfway through the first quarter.

However, from that point on, RLS was in complete command until early in the third quarter. After RLS punter Roosevelt Travis was tackled on the Pirate 7, the Padres blew an opportunity when they lost yardage on three plays and Lucido's 27-yard field goal attempt hit the left upright. The Pirates took over on the 20 and proceeded to march 80 yards with the score coming on a 2-yard run by Jim Dix. John Patrick's point after kick was low because of a bad snap and the game was still tied at 6-6.

In the second quarter, more Padre mistakes led to two touchdown passes from Burdix to Chris Ware of 20 and 23 yards to give the Padres a 21-6 halftime lead.

"It was nothing but ineptness," said Padre coach Frank Lynch referring to the first half. "The kids tried, but we were just getting beat off the ball by their line."

Early in the third quarter, RLS downed a Travis punt on their own 2. On the first play, Lucido fumbled the snap and Frank Black recovered for the Pirates. Three plays later, Black scored from the 1 to give the Pirates a commanding 28-6 lead.

However, Carmel didn't quit. Dave Araujo returned the kickoff to the 40. After a 38-yard pass to Bruce Robinson, Mike Odello ran 22 yards for his first touchdown of the year.

Early in the fourth quarter, Jim Colletto's fumble recovery set up Lucido's sixth touchdown of the year, a 12-yard run around right end. The two-point conversion pass was dropped and the score remained 28-18.

After the Padres got the ball back on Selle's second interception of the game, they turned around and gave it back when Dave Drummond intercepted a Lucido pass at midfield. Two plays later, Frank Black ran 47 yards for the clinching touchdown.

"I don't know what our kids were thinking on that one," said Lynch. "That was the game." The Padres came back on a 32-yard pass from Lucido to Robinson for the touchdown that made the score 34-26.

The Padres almost pulled the game out at the end, but Lucido's final pass was just out of the reach of Robinson, who was being double covered by Burdix and Ware. Burdix and Ware appeared to push Robinson before the ball got there, but the officials made no call.

"We were just outplayed today," said Lynch. "RLS has some very good players and their coaching staff made sure they all remembered what happened last year." Lynch was referring to last year's game in which Carmel routed RLS, 44-6.

In the frosh-soph game, Carmel breezed to a 21-0 victory. Matt Nottenkamper scored twice on runs of 25 and 5 yards, and Harry Lewis ran 10 yards for the other score.

THE PADRES girls' tennis team breezed to two easy wins last week, defeating Monterey, 5-2, and shutting out Hollister, 7-0. Carmel's next two matches are today against Santa Catalina, and next Tuesday against RLS. Both matches are to be played on the Carmel High courts.

Fiona McKenzie, Kathy Broderick and Aileen Kelly each won two singles matches, and Ingrid Brook-Kothlow and Cindy Landis each scored one singles win. In doubles action, the teams of Heidi England and Ann McDonald, and Laura Tanous and Laurie McGlochlin each won two matches. Tanous and McGlochlin are undefeated this year, while Kelly raised her record to 7-1.

Cachagua fire fighters host dinner

Firefighters from the Cachagua Volunteer Fire Company will host a benefit spaghetti dinner Saturday, Oct. 28 to raise money for a firehouse.

The event begins at 7 p.m. at Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley. The admission donation is $3 per person.

The fire company has one fire engine garaged at Princes Camp, but it is purchasing a second one with a matching grant from the federal government, said Cheryl Treganza, secretary to the company. She said the company needs a minimum of $2,000 to build adequate shelter for both fire trucks.

At the spaghetti feed, the country and western band "Night Riders" will play and a raffle for a color television set is planned.

Donations also can be sent to the company at Princes Camp, Carmel Valley 93924.

Paisano regatta Sat.

A wild time is promised for sailors and spectators alike at the annual Paisano Race sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Yacht Club Saturday, Oct. 21.

Sailors will depart at noon from Lovers Point in Pacific Grove in eight-foot El Toro sailboats. After sailing the first leg of the journey to a wine tanker anchored off the beach near the Outrigger Restaurant on Cannery Row, each sailor will pick up a bottle of wine, which he is expected to drink before the next leg of the race, a short sail to the beach by Municipal Wharf #2.

Waiting on the beach will be the female member of the racing team who has been secretly paired to the male sailor by a number on the wine bottle he received at the tanker. The male sailor must locate his partner and help her cast off on the last leg of the race around the mark located at the end of Wharf #2.

When the boat reaches the beach on the return trip, the woman must run 50 feet to a table set up on the beach and down a waiting glass of wine. Winners are named in the order that the glasses are emptied.

Sierra Club hike

A six-mile round-trip hike in Mount Madonna Park, between Watsonville and Gilroy, is on the outing calendar of the local Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club for Saturday, Oct. 21. Members of other chapters and other interested persons are welcome to join the excursion.

Hikers will meet at 8:30 a.m. at Cinema 70 in the Del Monte Shopping Center, Monterey, to form carpools for the 36-mile drive to the park or at the deer pen in the park at 9:15 a.m. A visit to a Watsonville apple orchard is planned on the way back to Monterey. Bring food, water and the suggested carpool fee of $2.25.

Odello development plan ordered by Supervisors

A development plan has been ordered for the 134-acre Odello agricultural property south of Carmel. The Monterey County Board of Supervisors said Tuesday they want a report back on the project by the first week in December.

Attorney Donald G. Hubbard, representing the Odello family, asked the board two weeks ago to order a specific plan and hire a consultant to prepare the plan. He complained then that the hotel-residential-commercial complex proposed for the property has bogged down in the county planning department. The supervisors ordered an environmental impact report in August 1977.

Tuesday's board resolution accepted both of Hubbard's suggestions. It also gave the consultant hired by the planning department 45 days to come back to the board with a progress report on the specific plan.

Supervisor Edwin Norris, who authored the resolution, said the consultant might need more than 45 days to complete the work. By having the consultant report back at the end of 45 days, the board would know how much progress he had made to that point.

Norris said the final plan would come to the board of supervisors before beginning a round of public hearings. He said he intends to ask for a fixed time limit on that process.

The Odello proposal to be considered in the specific plan calls for a 200-room hotel, 97 condominium units, a commercial project of shops and a farmers' market on the property. Another 22 acres are designated for a county corporation yard and trash transfer station.

The plan would leave 68 acres in agricultural production.

Planning Director Ed DeMars will hire the consultant to prepare the plan and an environmental impact report. The work will be paid for by the Odello family.

Laureles Grade accident Fri. injures one

A 32-year-old woman from Carmel Valley was injured Friday when her car went off Laureles Grade Road and overturned.

Martha Plascencia, of 78 W. Carmel Valley Rd., was taken to Community Hospital following the 7:15 p.m. accident. She was admitted to the hospital that evening and discharged Tuesday.

According to the California Highway Patrol, she was traveling south on Laureles Grade Road about two miles from Carmel Valley Road at the time of the crash.

Her car entered a curve too fast, the CHP said, crossed the road and drove up an embankment. It flipped over and landed back on the roadway, officers reported.

No other vehicles were involved.
